This chapter encompasses conclusion and suggestion. The conclusion refers to the result of analysis and the suggestion relates to writer's ideas after concluding the analysis.

A. Conclusion

This research aimed to find the modalities in The Most Beautiful Moment in Life the Notes 1 English Version written by Big Hit Entertainment which covered the kinds of modal verbs, functions and the meaning of modality. The writer used qualitative method for analyzing the data.

The writer found three kinds of modality namely epistemic, deontic and dynamic modality. Epistemic, deontic and dynamic modality can be applied in both positive and negative forms. Those kinds of modality also have different functions such as possibility, necessity, probability, ability and obligation. The result of this research found modal verbs categorized as epistemic modality named can expressed possibility (1 data or 3.3%), must expressed probability (7 data or 23.3%), would expressed possibility (3 data or 10.3%), will expressed certainty (1 data or 3.3%), and might express probability and possibility (2 data or 6.6%). Modal verbs categorized as deontic modalities found are must expressed obligation (1 data or 3.3%) and should expressed obligation (4 data or 13.3%). Furthermore, the writer found modal verbs categorized as dynamic modality named can expressed ability (1 data or 3.3%) and could expressed ability (10 data or 33.3%).

The writer concluded that modal verbs could as dynamic modality expressed about the speaker ability was the most frequent kind of modal verbs that used in The Most Beautiful Moment in Life the Notes 1 English Version written by Big Hit Entertainment.
