CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This chapter presents the conclusion and suggestion that concerns the results of the research discussed in the previous chapter.

A. CONCLUSION

Based on the results and interpretation of the research can be concluded that:

1. Restrictive appositive from the data taken is used to give more inquisitive reading experience for the novel reader. In order to maintain the focus of story line and consistency of the story itself, it is necessary for the novel when the sentence tells some characters and their relation to the whole story. Non-restrictive appositive in the novel is commonly used to give dramatization in the story thus the reader of the novel will expectedly have various kind of feelings after reading the Black Beauty novel.

2. The 45 data are taken from the novel Black Beauty - Anna Sewell which consists of 13 restrictive appositives and 32 non-restrictive appositives.

3. The results of the research showed that the most data found in Black Beauty novel by Anna Sewell is non-restrictive which was 71% while restrictive is only 29%.

B. SUGGESTION

Related to the significance of the research, there are two goals of the research. Theoretically, the result of this research is expected to give contribution in understanding the theory of restrictive and non-restrictive appositive as the element of language study in the work of literature. Practically, the result of this study is expected to give direction for other researchers who will conduct similar research. This research serves an example how to analyze the two types of appositive in a work of literature, in this research the object is a novel.

1. For Readers.

   Appositive in sentences in novel must be concerned through grammatical study which is necessary to be studied and understood both literally and structurally. Readers could use the sentences written in the novel to study grammar in certain language. In this case to study English language, readers could use the sentences given as example thus they can make similar sentence with different structure or context of the language produced in the process of learning.

2. For Researches

   Since analyzing appositive is strongly related to the field of grammar study, it is compulsory for the future researchers to understand the theory of appositive which mainly consist of two kinds; restrictive and non-restrictive. Further theory about appositive can be explored more according to language experts. Future researchers can use various kinds of text to examine and analyze the structure of the sentences used in the texts as object of the research.
