

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

A. Conclusion

After analysing language style in 10 Things I Hate about You movie as a research topic, it has been concluded some conclusions based on the data research:

1. There are some kind of language style in the 10 Things I Hate about You movie.

The most kind of language style that found in the movie is intimate style with percentage 60%, while casual style has 26,6%, and the last is consultative style has 13,4%.

2. For frozen style and formal style are 0%, the data are not found in the movie, because the story of the movie is telling about the teenager and no one of the conversation that contain formal conversation or formal situations.

3. The most function of language style that found in the movie is expressive with percentage 50%, while directive has 16,7%, referential has 13,3%, metalinguistic has 3,3%, poetic has 10%, and the last phatic has 6,6%.

4. Classifying the kind of language style and the function of language style needed knowledge about the characteristics about each kind of language style and function of language style because there some kind or function that have similar characteristic.

5. In human life, people need language to communicate each other, and language style is the tools of people how to use a language and to know the

B. Suggestions

The researcher acknowledge that in this research is still incomplete. Based on the conclusions, the researcher proposes several suggestions to the following parties:

First, for the students who have study sociolinguistics, especially in language style, it is important to understand the concept of language style, including meaning, kinds, features, and functions. In this research the researcher used a theory from Joos in Achmad and Alex (2013) and Holmes (2013) as the grand theory of language style. And, for the next researcher about language style, they can be combined with other theories in order to make it more interesting.

Second, for the lecturer especially lecturing sociolinguistics, the writer found that the material of sociolinguistics that focus on language style given by the lecturer was enough. The researcher hopes this paper can be helpful for the lecturer to give some example to the student who has interest about this topic and improve knowledge for them.

Third, last the suggestion is for the reader in general who have interest in sociolinguistics field especially in in language style. This paper can be a reference in understanding the language style theory and analysis.