

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

After having analysed 40 data in the previous chapter before, it can be concluded that there are so many multiple affixations can be found in Jakarta Post Newspaper. The writer focused on finding the process of multiple affixations words and also because the process, the writer can find the root and kind of affixations. By considering all things that matter, it can be concluded:

1. After analysing 40 data of multiple affixations, the writer knows that the numbers of round on input and output process depend of how many affixations that attached in one root.
2. The more affixes attached to the root, the more rounds in the input and output processes too. The fewer affixes attached to the root, the less the number of rounds in the process of forming multiple affixations
3. The writer finds two parts in the end, first is prefixes and suffixes, in this research suffixes are found the most about 67 data (71,3%), and prefixes are about 27 data (28,7%). Second is derivation and inflections, derivations are found about 63 data (67%), and inflections are found about 31 data (33%).
4. Affixes that often appears is suffixes and the most suffix that appears in this research is -s about 16 data

5. English actually has more suffixes than prefixes, and the infix is the least.
6. Affixations are like brotherhood in linguistics, consist of morphological elements, like prefix, infix, and suffix, they have similar functions in general but they have different functions in special. They are many but they were as if one unity.
7. Affixations are included in morphology, morphology is the sub science of linguistics, we are impossible to know or learn syntax etc. without facing or learning morphology. Phonology and phonetics. They have fixed rules in studying those sub-sciences of linguistics.

B. Suggestion

After analysing and giving conclusion about multiple affixations in Jakarta Post Business Columns newspaper, the writer would like to draw suggestions of the research, so that it can be helpful for everyone. Here it is:

1. For the writer

It is important and interesting to provide a new experience to analyze multiple affixations especially to decide which one root and which one affixes in Jakarta Post Business Columns newspaper. All of it makes the writer understand more about word formations especially of affixes.

2. For the lectures

This research can be a helpful source that can be used for sharing in teaching-learning process to the students in linguistics subject.

3. For the reader

The research will help the readers to understand a lot about morphology especially about affixation. This is era of technology sometimes learning by reading the main book can make the people bored. This research has interesting problems to understand that make the readers will be curious. The reader can get the mutual benefit of getting information about multiple affixations. The reader will understand and know that affix can attach more than one to the same root and each affix that attached has its own meaning and also understands that every word or root that is attached by affixes, then the word can change in terms of meaning and class of word. All of it depends on what are affixes that attached to the word.