

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

This Chapter Presents two major parts i.e., conclusion and suggestion. In conclusion part, the summary of research findings is presented as representee as possible. The suggestion part suggests the further action which can be taken considering the finding of the research.

A. Conclusion

After analyzing all the data that has been collected analyzed in the movie of Alice's adventures in wonderland director by William sterling and the novel of Alice's adventures in wonderland by Lewis's carol. The conclusion from the result of the thesis that the writer completed.

1. Based on data analysis and discussion of the comparative study of the two tangible objects—the novel Alice Adventures in Wonderland and the film Alice Adventures in Wonderland—it is known that there have been many reductions, additions, and modifications. the scene's reduction or shrinkage.

2. Changes are made since the novel's material cannot be fully included into the film. and the shrinking that takes place in the film takes into account its little running time. In addition, this happens when a screenwriter or director adds to the plot; this happens because the screenwriter or director has already interpreted the plot of the work that will be shot. Because the filmmaker wants to alter the tale he wants to shoot without altering the original plot, there is a change of variety or modification.

3. In connection with the addition scenario in the plot. The storyline's structural components are discovered to be added as a process of ecranization in the movie. Because children are the intended audience for this film, Alice in Wonderland, the director added music and dance to the scene to pique their interest. Additionally, the director wanted to create a new story for the film that wasn't explained in the book because the novel focused more on dialogue; this was done for the sake of filmic interest and visualization of the story

B. Suggestion

To finish up this thesis, the writer would like to provide some suggestions for the student, advising them to benefit from learning literature and language through comparison stories. If a researcher can identify subjects they enjoy studying, learning literature and language may be enjoyable. This is suggestion goes to:

1. For the learner

The methods of studying literature are crucial for learning a language. The purpose of this thesis is to demonstrate why studying literature is enjoyable. As a result, it will assist students in learning about a literary device known as a comparison plot.

2. For the next researchers

The comparison narrative analysis is the primary emphasis of this essay. In order for the thesis to serve as a guide for future scholars, the author understood that this work is still far from being flawless. The author makes recommendations for the following studies to do more literary analysis. Analysis of comparison narratives or ecranization is crucial.

3. For the campus

For supporting the research of English Literature, the campus has to provide various literature books especially Ecranization or comparation storyline in it'sThe comparison story analysis is the primary emphasis of this essay. In order for the thesis to serve as a guide for future scholars, the author understood that this work is still far from being flawless. The author makes recommendations for the following studies to do more literary analysis. Analysis of comparison narratives or ecranization is crucial.

