

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

This study is aimed to find out the single complement form and also describe their functions in creating the intensive verbs in “Orientation” short story by Daniel Orozco. After having analyzed the chapter before, the writer makes conclusion which can be drawn as follows:

1. Intensive verbs complemented by Adjective Phrases can functions only identify properties, while they complemented by Noun Phrase can used to identify properties and to refer to individuals. Prepositional Phrase to express ideas including manner, means, purpose, reason, place, and time including duration and frequency.
2. The forms of single complement which create intensive verbs are shown in the data analysis on tree diagram. By breaking structure of the sentence into constituent part and to find NP and VP through tree diagram, people can understand the intensive verb constructions. The writer found 30 data contain single complement form which creates intensive verbs. The form of single complement mostly found is 15 Noun Phrase (50%), then Adjective Phrase (36,67%), and the last is Prepositional Phrase (13,33%).

B. Suggestion

In this part, the writer provides some suggestions which is beneficial for the campus and also other researchers who wants to study about linguistic especially syntax.

1. For the campus

The writer expects this research give more support for the campus to provide some facilities for all students in doing research such as increasing the library with more specific books on every branch of study and also reinforcement the internet network so the students can be easier to find what they need from the internet.

2. For the readers

The writer suggest that they want to give more attention in understanding the constituent of Verb Phrase, it will make them easier to comprehend the meaning or message which state in phrase or sentence in this research.

3. For other researchers

The writer hopes that they want to learn a lot about lexical verbs since there are still a lot of categories which have not been explained in this research. They can know the kinds of the constructions of Verb Phrase. The writer also hopes that they want to attach novels, song lyrics, and other as media of the research.