

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

In this chapter, the writer explains about the conclusion and suggestion for the reader to comprehend more about the research.

A. Conclusion

According to the research questions, this research analyzed the kinds of maxims that are violated in the utterances and what implicature that are resulted by the violating maxims. After having 25 analyzed data in the previous chapter, it can be concluded that people have a certain purpose by having an implied message to others. Having an implied message or meaning behind the utterances causes breaking the rules of the cooperative principle and can lead to the violating of maxim. In The 100 series, there are violating maxims that are occurred in the characters' utterances. It can be concluded as:

1. Regarding the objective of the study, which is to classified and categorize the utterances into the types of maxims that are violated contained in The 100 series. There are four types of violating maxim that the writer found in The 100 series, that is violating maxim of quantity, violating maxim of quality, violating maxim of relevance, and violating maxim of manner.
2. By identifying every utterance in The 100 series, the writer found out that by breaking the rules of the cooperative principle and violation of maxim is occurs in the conversation can resulted an implicature or an implied meaning. The implicature of those maxims are used to reach a certain goal such as try to hide the truth of any information, gives incorrect information, change the topic of the conversation, tries to distract the conversation, gives an irrelevant answer, being obscure, does not try to give the hearer enough information, providing too much information and intentionally makes the hearer not to see the whole truth.

3. Regarding the second purpose of this study, which is to figure out why the data is categorized as a maxim violation. From the 25 data gathered, the writer found all of the types of maxim violation. The most common use type of violating maxim in The 100 series is violating maxim of relevance.

B. Suggestion

Based on the result of the research which have been obtained, the writer would like to give several suggestions for the next researcher who are interested for doing the research in the same field. The suggestions are presented below:

1. To the students

To students who are study linguistic, especially in pragmatics, it is highly suggested to learn more about violating maxim because it is frequently encountered in language use in everyday life.

2. To the readers

To general readers who have an interest in linguistics, the writer hopes that the reader can use this study as an additional knowledge and will help them to comprehend more about the types of violating maxims and the implicature that often occurs in everyday life.

3. To the writer

Because the writer hopes that this research could have a benefit for readers as a related reference in analyse violating maxim, the writer will greatly appreciate all of the suggestions and criticisms on how to improve this research.
