

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

In this final chapter based on the research finding and discussion in the previous chapter, the writer would like to give some conclusions as the follow:

1. There are many forms of attitudes that contain gender discrimination against others. There are seven types of gender discrimination analyzed by the writer. Interpersonal discrimination, organizational discrimination, institutional discrimination, cultural discrimination, racist, sexism, and ageism. Additionally, In the film Iron Jawed Angels contains the struggle of women to get the right to vote. Each scene that contains gender discrimination, the writer explained and described the type of gender discrimination.
2. Alice Paul struggles in suffrage for women, she got cruel treatment from government officials, in order to make her gave up fighting for suffrage. In such circumstances, Alice Paul and her friends continued to struggle, so that finally the government passed an amendment to the suffrage for women. Alice Paul's methods, did things that caught the attention of the media, held a parade during the presidential inauguration, continued to hold demonstrations during the second world war, and held a hunger strike while in prison even though she was forced to eat and exiled by prison officials.

B. Suggestion

After analysed and gave conclusion this research completely, the writer would like to deliver some suggestion based on the result of the research which have been obtained. It can be listed:

1. For the Other Writers

The writer expected this research can be useful to provide enough information for the next writer who want to have similar research about discrimination, especially about gender discrimination. The writer hoped that people will be more interested in feminist literature fields and can complete this technique.

2. For the Readers

Hopefully, the readers of this research can understand more about discrimination, especially gender discrimination that still often occurs in the real world. Hopefully with this research, the readers' knowledge can be wider about feminism. And the writer hoped that with increasing insight into discrimination, people can reduce the occurrence of discrimination in their environment.

3. For the Campus

The writer hoped, the library of campus can provide more references regarding feminist literature in the future so that can help the next writer to find the data source for their research easily. The writer hoped campus can equip some facilities of studying, such as strengthening the internet network. And hopefully, campus can provide the place for the writers doing the research, so the future writers can do their research comfortably and more focused.
