

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

Based on the analysis, it is possible to draw the conclusion that various teaching activities are carried out by educators or teachers in order to provide students who need it with a learning opportunity. Based on these observations, it was discovered that being a teacher at Taman Baca Inklusi Sentra Terpadu Pangudi Luhur is described as working with children and people with impairments. These explanations led to the conclusion below:

1. Teaching is not a profession that should be taken lightly. The best illustration of what teaching entails is the ability to comprehend children's behavior, oversee a learning environment, form relationships with students from various backgrounds, assess students' learning progress, and manage students' learning styles.
2. There are three challenges, including managing the classroom, teaching children with impairments, and a lack of resources such equipment and media, which are based on the prior challenges that have been described. The writer can overcome the challenges with the aid of the other interns participating in that internship.
3. Learning disabilities might be an obstacle to learn something. Although slowly, some of the kids at Taman Baca Inklusi have disabilities, they are nonetheless able to learn.
